You should know that you are Beautiful just the way we are. If someone anyone has any problem with your appearance the world could change it's heart. Physical appearance do not depicted your inner character it fails to show how beautiful you are from within. Being kind to others and being Happy is what matters the most... The smile which you are wearing it's the most beautiful thing it shines for itself, then no matter whether your skin colour is white black pale brown, Whether you are tall short thin Or think whether you have aligned teeth's Or not the smile covers all the physical appearance be it be good or not that perfect.

We should not live in a What If universe inside your head. Come out of world full of false exception s and belief. Look in the mirror see yourself little bit clearer there a light of hope to take you to the real world and believe me... There no better you than you that you are it's the perfect time to shine in the time where most people are under the dark. Be a hope be a shine for every one. Always see the positive side of others because perfect in imperfect. Be yourself be real and do not forget to smile... because someone said moment without smile is moment wasted. Face all your fears with smile. May be you fail or win but only you would know that how brave you are to face them by which most people are afraid...
